ONE IN A THOUSAND TREES...

Bark House Poplar Panels are one of the most extraordinary products that we offer. Young and old alike are mesmerized by such a recognizable texture presented in a way that almost defies believability.

We estimate that no more than one in a thousand trees will yield a sheet of bark large enough to become one of these treasures. Harvested from reclaimed forest material, timing and skill are critical to the success of unrolling an unbroken full cylinder from a log. No two are ever alike. Limb scars, epicormic knots, growth stress, bird peck, and lightning scars are all textural variances that can be present that give each sheet its own unique identity. One can even tell directions the bark faced by the distinct color changes that flow from the north side to the south.

Flattened, kiln-dried, and precision squared, our panels make direct applications to drywall or plywood quick and simple. We also offer our panels vacuum laminated to various substrates for use as cabinetry inserts, stand-off wall mounts, or for exterior walls. The deeply furrowed and rugged outer cork provides the same outdoor protection as our shingles while also exhibiting amazing interior acoustical benefits. Whether your needs are for total wall covering or a small accent, interior or exterior, commercial or residential, our Bark House Poplar Panels always become a stunning focal point for any space.
